

TRANSCRIPT PREPARED BY THE CLERK OF THE LEGISLATURE
Transcriber's Office

January 29, 1998 LB 306

should have ended it. But the lawyer, pressing his advantage, said, then how can you testify that my witness...that my client bit this man's ear off? The witness said, I saw him spit it out. So if sometimes people would know when to hold 'em, a problem wouldn't be raised. If people had not told the committee, and if committee members had not acknowledged that this...there's this secret operative under deep cover who wants this bill and is going to benefit from it, but don't tell anybody, then maybe there wouldn't be an issue. But once the issue is out there, I want to know. My rural colleagues heard me criticize them. Not my rural colleagues, my agricultural colleagues heard me criticize them over a way a bill was to be referred to the Ag Committee which I thought should go to Judiciary. I want them to see that I go after the city slickers, too. Now, the first thing I think a member of that committee should have done is to say, you've raised the issue for us, we're not here representing any specific company, group of companies, organization, chamber of commerce, or collection of chambers of commerce. Now you tell us that this is being done for a particular outfit. Tell us who it is! And they'd say, no. I'd say, then you don't get the bill, or you don't get my vote. So when this bill, if it comes out of committee, gets here I'm going to deal with this bill and I'm going to find out who that secret operative is, and, if I don't, this might be the first bill where you're all going to have to invoke structured debate. And it will be ironic, because the reason you will do it is to keep me from trying to bring to the public's attention a hidden beneficiary. If they wanted what they're doing to be kept confidential, they shouldn't have told anybody. The last one to tell is a politician. And then if the politician wants it to be kept in confidence, don't mention that there is some hidden individual or group of individuals who will benefit financially directly from this legislation. It ought to all be out on the table. And I'm going to do all that I can to bring it out on the table. Those kind of deals I don't make with people. If somebody comes to my office and will ask me to keep something in confidence, it cannot be something that relates to the public's business or how I'm going to do my job. I don't keep those things confidential, and I don't bind myself in that way. I cannot...

PRESIDENT ROBAK: One minute.
